AANS/CNS Joint Cerebrovascular Section Annual Meeting – “Adaptive Ingenuity” and the 4th SNIS International Endovascular Stroke Conference (IESC)

INTERNATIONAL PARTNER – Society of Brazilian Neurosurgery

February 10-11, 2014 • Hard Rock Hotel • San Diego, California
Dear Colleague,

Greetings!

In follow up to last year’s successful joint venture, SNIS and the Joint Cerebrovascular Section are proud to announce that the Joint Cerebrovascular Section Annual Meeting and the 4th SNIS International Endovascular Stroke Conference (IESC) will once again join forces on February 10-11 in advance of the International Stroke Conference in San Diego, CA. This partnership has evolved out of a long history of mutual commitment to excellence in the neurosciences and patient care, and a growing collaboration in neurovascular treatment, particularly where it concerns stroke therapy.

To that end, this year’s meeting will once again be marked by shared sessions as well as concurrent ones, enabling participants plenty of choices across a wide range of topics. Headlining the shared track are session blocks dedicated to aneurysm treatment, including various types and therapy options, as well as intervention in asymptomatic patients, relative to treatment of carotid stenosis, unruptured aneurysms and arteriovenous malformations (AVMs). Concurrent sessions offer attendees opportunities to dive deeper on issues around AVM management, assess socioeconomic issues associated with cerebrovascular therapy and examine ICU practice and vasospasm treatment, while also providing a surround-sound focus on stroke treatment and its current status. Highlights of the latter include a full analysis of previous stroke trials, including lessons learned and insights for future trial design and planning; the always anticipated stroke debates featuring point/counterpoint on everything from devices to hospital services to patient selection; practical aspects of acute stroke intervention; and hemorrhagic and ischemic stroke abstract presentations. Other concurrent sessions provide robust overviews of research/trials, as well as the management of complications for both open surgery and endovascular therapy.

In addition to scientific sessions, specific meeting highlights include the Joint Cerebrovascular Sections's popular annual Luessenhop Lecture. Beyond featured sessions, attendees will have plenty of opportunities to interact with industry through several sponsored symposia, as well as in the Exhibit Hall. And, just to ensure a little respite from such an ambitious agenda, the program committee has planned the Taste of San Diego reception with a myriad of indulgences for your enjoyment.

As the neuroscience field continues to evolve in ways that significantly impact medicine as well as patient care, it is more important than ever that we nurture our opportunities for partnership and collaboration. Through our collective “brain trust” of clinical and institutional knowledge, as well as our mutual commitment to and passion for advancement of treatments that can revolutionize the quality of cerebrovascular care, we are endowed with a great responsibility. Thanks so much to all of you, our industry friends and fellow practitioners, who carry out that responsibility daily, in your quest to advance the science that underlies all of our efforts, and then utilize it for the benefit of the thousands of patients who depend on our ingenuity and determination. We trust this meeting will provide new opportunities to glean more insights and create new intersections of thought that will further inspire us to carry out our respective missions, and meet our full potential as “difference-makers” in the neuroscience corner of medicine.

See you in San Diego!

Sincerely,

Nicholas Bambikidis, MD
CV Section Program Chair

Michael Kelly, MD, PhD
SNIS Program Chair
